

Qwickly PLUS CLOUD

Connect Cloud Storage Repositories to Blackboard

As institutions, and individuals alike, shift their content storage to cloud services, it has become more essential that faculty have a way to add content stored on those systems directly into Blackboard. Posting documents, submitting assignments and linking to collaborative cloud documents has never been easier within Blackboard.

Supported Cloud Storage

Qwickly Plus Cloud supports Microsoft OneDrive (Personal & OneDrive for Business/Office 365), Google Drive, Dropbox, and Box.

Link To Cloud Mashup

Allow linking to a file in Box, Dropbox, Google Drive or OneDrive from any visual text editor in Blackboard.

Qwickly Plus Cloud provides a Link to Cloud Content Mashup Tool which allows users in any Blackboard text editor to choose to link to an external cloud document. This is a great way to facilitate office hours sign-up sheets, collaborative group projects lead by students, or simply a way to link to the most updated version of any document stored in the cloud.

Qwickly Plus Cloud connects cloud to storage to Blackboard in exciting ways, leveraging the ease of use of Qwickly Plus products.

Create Cloud Assignment

If you're looking to accept assignments from cloud storage repositories, the Qwickly Create Cloud Assignment allows students to submit documents from the cloud.

Qwickly Plus Cloud allows faculty to add content directly to multiple courses straight from Google Drive. Standard document types in Google Drive will copy over to Blackboard, and Google Docs can be converted to PDF or their Microsoft Office equivalent.

Upload Cloud Content Tool

The Upload Cloud Content Course Tool allows faculty to add files from Google Drive, Microsoft OneDrive, and Dropbox to content areas of their course. The Upload Cloud Content tool takes the familiarity of adding a typical item in Blackboard and applies it to cloud content.

QWICKLY BUILDING BLOCK

The Qwickly Building Block for Blackboard Learn provides a micro-platform that increases the efficiency of communicating with members of and managing content in multiple courses and organizations, as well as simplifying tasks that need to be done repetitively in each course an instructor teaches. This platform also creates a connection between popular cloud storage services and Blackboard Learn, which allows posting documents and submitting assignments from the cloud. Qwickly's Attendance tool enables faculty to track attendance that is automatically graded in the Blackboard Grade Center using an attendance list or allowing students to check in.

Qwickly Inc. is a licensed developer for Blackboard, Google, Dropbox, Box, and Microsoft.

Qwickly is used by 500+

schools worldwide.

Schools across the world have deployed Qwickly in their Blackboard Learn environment, allowing their users to do repetitive tasks more efficiently, and with greater ease.
